NATION'S REVERENT HOMAGE ARMISTICE DAY

TURNS THOUGHTS BACK TO STIRRING DAYS 6 YEARS AGO

MEMORIAL SERVICES AND PATRIOTIC EXERCISES HELD TODAY

PARADES AND OTHER CEREMONIES TO OBSERVE THE DAY

(By United Press)

Washington, Nov. 11.—The nation today turned its thoughts back six years to another Armistice Day and paid reverent homage to those who gave their lives on the altar of victory.

Throughout the country memorial services for the dead were held and patriotic exercises, parades and other ceremonies appropriately observed the day.

Two shrines were receiving thousands of visitors—the tomb of the unknown soldier at Arlington and the chapel beneath in which Woodrow Wilson, war president, lies.

President Coolidge made a pilgrimage to Arlington to pay simple tribute to the unknown warrior who symbolizes the nation's war dead by laying a wreath on his tomb. He was accompanied only by Secretary of War Weeks and Secretary of Navy Wilbur and his personal staff.

After leaving the tomb Mr. Coolidge drove to the nearby conservatory of agriculture department and obtained a huge wreath which he took to the Arlington cemetery and placed on the grave of Major Augustus Peabody Gardner, son-in-law of Senator Lodge, who died in 1918. Mrs. Coolidge also left a bouquet on Gardner's grave.

Following the president scores of veterans' organizations held brief exercises before the tomb and left wreaths. Two army chaplains who officiated at the burial of the unknown soldier continued their custom of visiting the tomb each anniversary.

Woodrow Wilson's tomb in the national cathedral likewise was the mecca for scores of visitors.

Congress may be asked in December to take up the matter of declaring Armistice Day a holiday, it was said here today, following President Coolidge's decision that he has no authority to order work stopped in governmental departments on the day.

The Call

Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,

The Pledge

Sleep on, ye brave! The shrieking shell,
The quaking trench, the startled yell,
The fury of the battle hell
Shall wake you not, for all is well.
Sleep peacefully, for all is well.

Your flaming torch aloft we bear,
With burning heart an oath we swear
To keep the faith, to fight it through,
To crush the foe or sleep with you

The Fulfillment

Shall shine forever where you lie.

No more in Flanders fields will grow

For crushed and conquered lies the foe.
We kept the faith—we've seen it through;
Our myriad brave lie dead with you

Sweet be your rest! Our task is done;
The tramp of armies, boom of gun
And furious cry of savage Hun
Are silent now. The victory's won!
Peace to your souls! The victory's won
In Flanders fields.

The Conclusion

The entire nation appeared to have opened its money bags, for an expression of speculative confidence in the return of President Coolidge to power.

(By United Press)

New York, Nov. 11.—Brokerage houses working late into the night still were swamped with orders as the Stock Exchange opened for the sixth day of the greatest post-election business boom since the war.

The physical machinery of Wall Street was taxed to its utmost to handle the flood of orders which rolled in from all sections of the nation. The turnover of securities aggregates 2,226,220 shares and trading on the curb exchange was proportionately great.

A record high for trading in separate issues was established when 526 separate stocks were dealt in, compared with 517 on the previous day, December 27, 1923.

The entire nation appeared to have opened its money bags, for an expression of speculative confidence in the return of President Coolidge to power.

Grain markets showed a healthy trend, with December wheat up 2 cents and May up 2 7-8 cents.

RAILWAY STOCKS TAKE A JUMP

HEAVY BUYING CONTINUES ON NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

(By United Press)

New York, Nov. 11. — Railway stocks jumped to the fore as heavy buying continued on the Stock Exchange today.

Wabash A went to a new high on the wave of prosperity that has followed the presidential election, reaching 52¼, while M. K. & T. reached 25⅜ and "A" stock 60¼.

Louisville & Nashville reached 1.03 and Southern Pacific 1.02.

Reports of business expansion throughout the country added to the buying fever. The rise in Southern Pacific was attributed in part to reports that the stock will go on a $7 dividend basis at Thursday's meeting.

ALLEGED "BRAINS" PLEADED GUILTY

BRENT GLASSCOCK CHARGED WITH LEADING BANDIT MAIL ROBBERS

(By United Press)

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Brent Glasscocks, alleged "brains of the Rondout, Ill., mail train robbery in which an armed band looted a mail train of $1,000,000, today pleaded guilty to participation in the robbery immediately prior to calling the case for trial before Judge Adam Cliff.

With Glasscocks Jeff and Joe Newton also pleaded guilty. Willie and Willis Newton previously had entered pleas of guilty.

The action leaves only one man to go on trial who actually participated in the robbery.

Three others, including William F. Fahy, postal inspector, are under indictment for planning the bold holdup.

Herbert Holiday of Kansas City, the only man now facing trial, may later change his plea to guilty if his attorney can come to an agreement with the state's attorney to reduce the number of counts in his indictment.

Farm Sells Quickly When Paved Road Is Opened, Says Millard

Less than a week after the opening of the new pavement on trunk highway No. 3 between St. Cloud and St. Joseph, a 40-acre farm on the route, which had been on the market for three years, was sold for $310 an acre, all cash, R. B. Millard, Little Falls, reported to the Minnesota State Realty association, of which he is a director.

"This sale is one mighty fine argument for paved roads and shows the value to be placed on them," said the report. "While we had no passable road to this property, it was almost impossible to dispose of it. Within a week after the paving was opened, I had three calls for it and a bargain was closed at $310 an acre and all cash.

"When we put over the twenty million bond issue for permanent road improvements at the coming session of the legislature, I know that we will see a good many more permanent roads built and farm values enhanced," added Mr. Millard.—Little Falls Daily Transcript.

THANKSGIVING TURKEYS MARKET

Farmers Generally With Flocks Are Fattening Them For Holiday

BEST FEED TO BE USED

County Agent Roth Gives Instructions From State Poultry Specialist

Farmers generally, who have raised turkeys this season, are beginning to think of fattening the birds for the Thanksgiving market, and County Agent E. G. Roth, gives some directions along this line, recommended by Miss Cora Cooke, state poultry specialist, with the agricultural extension service of the University of Minnesota.

Turkeys are best fattened on range and corn gives the quickest and best gains, says Miss Cooke. The corn ration should be begun gradually, for if the corn is not well matured, digestive troubles may develop.

It is best to begin with a light feeding of mixed grain, gradually changing to corn and increasing the ration steadily. For the last ten days before the turkeys are marketed, they should receive all the corn they will clean up every day, with the largest feedings night and morning.

It is important, Miss Cooke warns, to ship turkeys from the farms ten days to two weeks before Thanksgiving day. Dealers often have to reship, and if the turkeys are received too late, they may have to be held over at a much lower price.

Good quality turkeys will be in strong demand for this Thanksgiving season, says Miss Cooke, for the turkey crop is small this year. Turkeys well matured and in good flesh should bring a good price on the Thanksgiving market.

LAUNCH FIGHT ON THEORY OF EVOLUTION

(By United Press)

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Forces of Fundamentalism in religious and education thought gathered here today to unite without regard to denominational differences for a finish fight on Modernistic tendencies and the theory of evolution.

Meeting at the Moody Bible Institute tomorrow at the invitation of Dr. James Gray, president, nine presidents of Orthodox colleges of all sections of the country will form a permanent organization to fight the encroachment on fundamental education by the modernists.

It is proposed to formulate a comprehensive program of protective and aggressive action.

Discussion of the problem of finding satisfactory textbooks covering debated ground or of publication by the organization of such books will be taken up at the sessions starting tomorrow and continuing until Thursday.

Decision on post-graduate institutions which may be safely patronized by the conservative schools and the need of a monthly journal of conservative scholarship and other points in common among the fundamentalist institutions will be featured in the meeting.

Among the educators expected before first discussions start tomorrow are: Paul Helsel, Pacific Junior College, Los Angeles; E. G. Burrett, Greenville College, Greenville, Ill.; H. F. Larabee, Ashbury College, Wilmore, Ky.; George McCready Price, Union College, Collegeview, Neb.; John Leedy, Marion College, Marion, Ind.; C. E. Hardy, Trevecca College, Nashville, Tenn.; J. L. Brasher, John Fletcher College, Oskaloosa, Iowa; S. C. Yoder, Goshen College, Goshen, Ind., and C. B. Widmeyer.

In addition to the schools named all institutions of college grade which classify or desire to be classified as orthodox or conservative institutions, in the meaning of those terms as opposed to modernism, liberalism and evolution, were invited to be represented at the discussions.

Graft Vegetables

Experiments in the grafting of vegetables and flowers by French botanists have resulted in the creation of new species, have prolonged the lives of many plants, and have intensified the perfume of many flowers. Potatoes that grow on branches above the ground are among the results of the experiments.

HOW GREAT MEN MAKE LOVE

"STONEWALL" JACKSON AND ANNA MORRISON

"STONEWALL" JACKSON, the penniless orphan who became a celebrated hero, was married to Miss Junkin, daughter of a clergyman. Fourteen months after, Mrs. Jackson died and the future general's second wife was Anna Morrison, also a clergyman's daughter. This union was an extremely happy one and the letter below is a happy reflection on their married life. It was written at the time of the defeat of the Federal troops on the fields of Fredericksburg. Jackson was resting with his troops and he also was expecting to hear of a new arrival at his home. So sacred did he consider these tidings to be that he gave orders that the announcement should not be transmitted by telegraph but sent to him by letter, and when the news of the birth of his daughter Julia arrived by messenger he took the letter and hurried away from his staff, telling none its contents and leaving them to learn of the event from other sources. His joy over the advent of his baby was boundless and he wrote to his wife:

"How thankful I am to our Heavenly Father for having spared my precious wife and given us a little daughter. I cannot tell how grateful I am, nor how much I wish I could be with you and to see my two darlings. But while this pleasure is denied me I am thankful it is accorded to you to have my little pet and I hope it may be a great deal of company and comfort to its mother. Now don't exert yourself to write to me for to know that you were exerting yourself to write would give me more pain than the letter would pleasure, so you must not do it. But you must love your esposo in the meantime. . . .

"I expect you are just now made up with that baby. Don't you wish that your husband wouldn't claim any part of it, but let you have the sole ownership? Don't you regard it as the most precious little creature in the world? Do not spoil it and do not let anybody tease it. Don't permit it to have a bad temper. How I would love to have the darling little thing: Give her many kisses from her father. . . .

"I am so thankful to our ever kind Heavenly Father for having so improved my eyes as to be able to write at night. He continues to shower blessings upon me; and that you should have been spared and our darling little daughter given us, fills my heart with overflowing gratitude. If I know my unworthy self, my desire is to live entirely and unreservedly to God's glory. Pray, my darling, that I may so live. . . ."

WOULD BE PLEASED

Bum Composer—Would you like to hear my last song?

The Grouch—It would give me genuine pleasure, my dear sir.

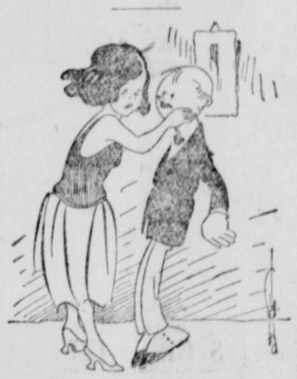

SNOW ON HER BROW

Brother—Jane's brow is like the snowdrift.

Sister—I never knew her to put it on that thick.

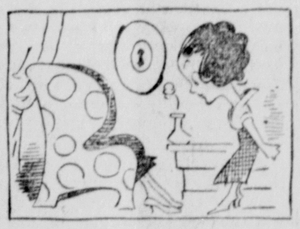

WANTED ANOTHER

"There! I told you I'd slap your face if you kissed me."

"If I'll let y' slap th' other cheek, can I have another?"

STARTING AT IT

Her Friend—When you and Ferdinand were married he promised you the cream of everything. Is he making good?

Mrs. Youngbride—He's making a good start. He earns enough to keep me supplied with cold cream and himself with shaving cream.

A CHANGED MAN

"He was such a poor talker—used so few words."

"You haven't met him since he acquired a flivver. I see."

NO USE EITHER WAY

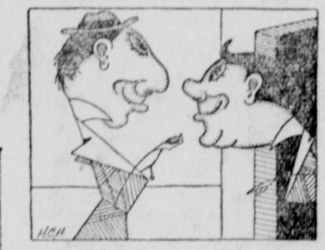

She—Nobody loves a fat man.

Mr. Dedbroke—But I'm not fat.

She—No? Well, nobody loves a flat man, either.

SEEMED THE RIGHT PLACE

What made you think you could get your watch fixed at a second-hand store, you gink?"

"Well, only the second-hand was broke!"

ON HEELS OF WEALTH

Friend—You know, my dear, poverty treads close upon the heels of great and unexpected wealth.

Mrs. Neurich—Ain't it the truth? Don't you know I can't get out of my car to go into a shop without some beggar following me right in the door?

IS BRAINERD LOYAL TO ITSELF?

THE United States is made a great nation because of its commerce. Americans are known the world over as being adepts at business. And business gives it power among the other nations of the world.

The same thing that makes a nation a strong factor also makes a city strong. The Twin Cities have grown like mushrooms because all trade in this great Northwest is tributary to them. The trade builds the cities.

Small towns which have been a factor in their communities have dwindled into mere crossroads since the advent of the automobile and bus. This new mode of travel has taken the business to larger cities and the towns have suffered.

The commercial clubs have figuratively beaten their industrial dreams trying to settle business in their communities as old bee keepers are wont to settle bees, with only partial success, for business responds to other calls.

The cities which are making substantial gains are cities which are loyal to themselves. When the residents of a city send their trade to other cities they do their own town a great injustice which, in hte end, is very costly to the resident. Trained men are needed to direct the affairs of a city and fortunate the city where the head of a successful business can be induced to give his experience for the good of a city. As an example witness the wonderful service which George D. LaBar has given our city as a member of our school board as well as to other civic programs. The community could not purchase such a service. He represents the service given by other Brainerd men whose business training has fitted them to serve a community well. Had the citizens of Brainerd carried their bank accounts in the cities such a service could not be given as officials of our banks give our city.

It is stated that the residents of Brainerd send sufficient business out of Brainerd to not only make every local store successful, but if left at home their business could be greatly enlarged. A dollar spent at home buys as much as it does elsewhere and at the same time builds local business and builds local business men of whom the community has a right to demand the maximum of service. By building Brainerd business houses stronger, the whole community will be strengthened and property values increased.

THE VALUE OF A BUDGET

THE budget idea governing national expenditures was put into effect by the late President Harding and has been ably concontinued by President Coolidge.

Theodore Christianson, governor-elect of Minnesota, is desirous of reorganizing the state government and instituting a budget system.

The plan has been discussed many years, but not enough backbone has been found to put it into effect. And why? It is really harder to save money, to cut down appropriations, to scale down enthusiastic proposals to spend money, than it is to maintain an indifferent attitude.

The average family can only save by learning to do without certain things. It entails sacrifice. The state can only save and reduce taxation, by doing without certain things. Mr. Christianson, as governor, will be able to use his years of experience on the house appropriations committee. He served as chairman some six years. He knows the wants of the state and he is also aware of the necessity of a budget to keep the satisfaction of such wants in proper bounds.

No private business can be run with profit unless the budget idea prevails. A state, if it is to be run on business lines, must have its financial boundaries determined, its chart prepared, so that it may be navigated and arrive in home port with satisfaction to its owners.

ARMISTICE DAY

ARMISTICE DAY may well be dedicated to the consideration of world peace and the outlawing of war among the nations. Such is the idea advanced by President Coolidge in his letter to James A. Drain, National Commander of the American Legion.

This Armistice Day dawns and reveals reconstructive work in Europe on a more substantial footing. A better understanding prevails among the nations. The evacuation of the Ruhr is in progress. The Dawes plan is America's contribution, evolved with the assistance of other nations serving on the committee.

Men and women everywhere are giving more thought to the sentiment of outlawing war. Public sentiment, moving in righteous channels, is irresistible.

Brainerd today pays homage to those who gave their lives for this country, not alone in the war, but later when they succumbed to disease and injury contracted in that war. It honors those living, now working as valiantly to solve peace time problems as they did those of war.

As the mystic hour of 11 approached, the nation stood in silent tribute. It paused to center thought in loving memory, in devoted homage, in acknowledgement of that sacrifice which gives service and life itself for country and fireside.

CLOSE POLLS EARLY

MINNESOTA is always slow on election returns because its polls do not close at 6 p. m., but are kept open until 9 p. m. This extra three hours of work retards counting of votes and also serves to bring added work to the judges and clerks.

One law that should be changed by the next legislature is the fool measure that requires the polls in the state to be kept open until 9 o'clock, comments the Bemidji Daily Pioneer. Minnesota is the only state in the union that has such a law and as a consequence the returns are always delayed until the following day instead of being completed before midnight as they should be.

Out in the rural districts the farmers on the election boards are kept up so late that it practically unfits them for farm work the next day, and they are out two days when serving patriotically on such boards.

THE people wanted no deadlock in Congress, plus months of oratory.

HOW GREAT MEN MAKE LOVE

AS REVEALED BY THEIR LOVE LETTERS

By JOSEPH KAYE

(© by Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY AND ELIZABETH KAHLE

SENDING a "tintype" of himself to Elizabeth Kahle, James Whitcomb Riley, America's beloved poet, accompanied it with the following lines:

I send you a shadow ghost of a face,
To haunt you forever with eyes,
That look in your own with the tenderest grace
Affectionate art can devise.

And had they the power to sparkle and speak
In the language of smiles and tears,
The rainbow of love would illumine the cheek,
And banish the gloom that appears.

The heart correspondence between Riley and Miss Kahle lasted five years, two of which were passed without their having seen each other. The end came when Miss Kahle became Mrs. Brunn and thought it improper to continue the correspondence. The actual facts of the romance are little known as yet and one can only guess at the story underlying Riley's love letters. From Greenfield, in August 23, 1879, Riley wrote Miss Kahle:

"Your letter is so kind—so very kind and good that I must write at once to thank you for it and grab your two warm hands close in my own and wring them fervently. Only you must not be concerned about my health or welfare—anything—'cause I don't deserve such interest from anyone so good as you. I do smile though when you say 'I want to ask like I do of children when they cry, what is the matter? Tell me!'

"Surely, if you feel like that, and indeed you comprehend me just as I am—a little helpless child who would thank God with all his boyish heart if you just would—now, this minute—put your hands over my eyes and say, 'Now, you must sleep,' only—only—I want to be strong enough to bear my burden and your dear words make me weak. You don't know—you can't know—what a weight it is and how heavier it grows each weary step I take.

"Forgive me, but you mustn't be so good to me, because I want you to be happy—not like me, who cannot even lift my empty hands at times and ask God's help. You make me want to call you 'little girl.' You make me want to come to you, creeping on my face and hands, to get away from all the world and rest—rest. . . ."

After Riley's death Mrs. Brunn became addicted to spiritualism and sought and obtained—through the kindness of mediums—spirit messages from the poet. One of these messages was obtained in 1921, produced by a medium in pencil, in Riley's autograph. Here it is:

With the selfsame sunlight upon us.
I am writing, dear love, somewhere,
He you would honor, he that you wish for,
Thy king, thy loved one, "over there."

It seems an insult to the memory of a genius to associate such a verse as the above with his name, even though the association is made in private. The doggerel, however, has the merit of being up-to-date, for note the popular war phrase, "over there."

Imitation Furs Are in Large Peltry Displays

Imitation fur as well as the genuine species plays a large part in the collection. There are imitation broadtail and moleskin coats and suits, and there is plush material imitating leopard skin that is more striking than it is beautiful. Real leopard skin is dyed a deep orange in a three-quarter cape.

Black costumes are as frequent and as charming as they were last season. One that is assured of great success has a corsage of black fulgurante with gauntlet cuffs and a scarf of Persian lamb. The wrapover skirt of the fur is put on with a deep scallop back and front and has a slight godet fullness.

There are many beltless tunics to the day dresses, and a new line is shown in the yokes which extend over the shoulder, giving it a drop effect. Chanel raises the waistline of her evening gowns a little above the average of the rest of her collection.

Tunic Is Featured in Many Stylish Frocks

The tunic introduced in its latest phase among the autumn models is expressed in innumerable charming styles, employing some of the many new materials and interesting combinations. It has the indorsement of the best artists, such as Alice Bernarr, Louise Boulanger, Jean Patou and Paquin.

It is done with success in frocks for every occasion, from the informal slipon in cloth, crepe, satin, alpaca or rep, to the most elaborate gown for afternoon, theater or restaurant wear, made of the finer fabrics, the new embossed velvets, metal cloth and embroidered or beaded crepes, with the beautiful metal laces and ornate gimps.

New Use for Velvet Ribbon

Girdles of pink webbing have strips of pink velvet running lengthwise. Around the bottom of the girdles are other rows running crosswise.

GRACEFUL AFTERNOON GOWNS ELEGANT BUT UNASSERTIVE

THE simplest afternoon and dinner gowns afford greater opportunities for varying the toilette than their more ornate rivals because they are inconspicuous and allow the use of chic accessories. If one can indulge in an assortment of dresses for afternoon this consideration need not enter into the choice of styles, but the majority of women must limit themselves. They are sensible when they choose (as they usually do) graceful and simple gowns (of first-rate materials) that are elegant but not assertive in design.

A beautiful example of a dress of this character is pictured here made of black crepe de chine and adorned with beaded bands, also in black. It tells its own simple but exquisite story and is the sort of dress that its wearer will never tire of. The mode presents many versions of present styles in dresses of this character and naturally many of them are in black. With these gowns sashes, corsage ornaments, scarfs, collars, jewelry contribute means of adding color and variety.

In materials crepe-satin is a favorite because both its surfaces may be combined in inconspicuous decorative effects. Then there are plain, straight-line black velvet gowns, satin and lace combinations and new arrivals in which faille or bengaline silk are combined with kasha or other cloth. Broadcloth is also represented in the displays of afternoon gowns.

While we are looking about for dependable and adaptable afternoon garb we run across many tempting interpretations of current styles in combinations of black with a color. Black satin, with side panels and vest of dull-purple georgette, black with an apronlike tunic of tobacco-brown satin, black with vivid green introduced in a sash and black with flesh color.

IS BRAINERD LOYAL TO ITSELF?

THE United States is made a great nation because of its commerce. Americans are known the world over as being adepts at business. And business gives it power among the other nations of the world.

The same thing that makes a nation a strong factor also makes a city strong. The Twin Cities have grown like mushrooms because all trade in this great Northwest is tributary to them. The trade builds the cities.

Small towns which have been a factor in their communities have dwindled into mere crossroads since the advent of the automobile and bus. This new mode of travel has taken the business to larger cities and the towns have suffered.

The commercial clubs have figuratively beaten their industrial dreams trying to settle business in their communities as old bee keepers are wont to settle bees, with only partial success, for business responds to other calls.

The cities which are making substantial gains are cities which are loyal to themselves. When the residents of a city send their trade to other cities they do their own town a great injustice which, in hte end, is very costly to the resident. Trained men are needed to direct the affairs of a city and fortunate the city where the head of a successful business can be induced to give his experience for the good of a city. As an example witness the wonderful service which George D. LaBar has given our city as a member of our school board as well as to other civic programs. The community could not purchase such a service. He represents the service given by other Brainerd men whose business training has fitted them to serve a community well. Had the citizens of Brainerd carried their bank accounts in the cities such a service could not be given as officials of our banks give our city.

It is stated that the residents of Brainerd send sufficient business out of Brainerd to not only make every local store successful, but if left at home their business could be greatly enlarged. A dollar spent at home buys as much as it does elsewhere and at the same time builds local business and builds local business men of whom the community has a right to demand the maximum of service. By building Brainerd business houses stronger, the whole community will be strengthened and property values increased.

THE VALUE OF A BUDGET

THE budget idea governing national expenditures was put into effect by the late President Harding and has been ably continued by President Coolidge.

Theodore Christianson, governor-elect of Minnesota, is desirous of reorganizing the state government and instituting a budget system.

The plan has been discussed many years, but not enough backbone has been found to put it into effect. And why? It is really harder to save money, to cut down appropriations, to scale down enthusiastic proposals to spend money, than it is to maintain an indifferent attitude.

The average family can only save by learning to do without certain things. It entails sacrifice. The state can only save and reduce taxation, by doing without certain things. Mr. Christianson, as governor, will be able to use his years of experience on the house appropriations committee. He served as chairman some six years. He knows the wants of the state and he is also aware of the necessity of a budget to keep the satisfaction of such wants in proper bounds.

No private business can be run with profit unless the budget idea prevails. A state, if it is to be run on business lines, must have its financial boundaries determined, its chart prepared, so that it may be navigated and arrive in home port with satisfaction to its owners.

ARMISTICE DAY

ARMISTICE DAY may well be dedicated to the consideration of world peace and the outlawing of war among the nations. Such is the idea advanced by President Coolidge in his letter to James A. Drain, National Commander of the American Legion.

This Armistice Day dawns and reveals reconstructive work in Europe on a more substantial footing. A better understanding prevails among the nations. The evacuation of the Ruhr is in progress. The Dawes plan is America's contribution, evolved with the assistance of other nations serving on the committee.

Men and women everywhere are giving more thought to the sentiment of outlawing war. Public sentiment, moving in righteous channels, is irresistible.

Brainerd today pays homage to those who gave their lives for this country, not alone in the war, but later when they succumbed to disease and injury contracted in that war. It honors those living, now working as valiantly to solve peace time problems as they did those of war.

As the mystic hour of 11 approached, the nation stood in silent tribute. It paused to center thought in loving memory, in devoted homage, in acknowledgement of that sacrifice which gives service and life itself for country and fireside.

CLOSE POLLS EARLY

MINNESOTA is always slow on election returns because its polls do not close at 6 p. m., but are kept open until 9 p. m. This extra three hours of work retards counting of votes and also serves to bring added work to the judges and clerks.

One law that should be changed by the next legislature is the fool measure that requires the polls in the state to be kept open until 9 o'clock, comments the Bemidji Daily Pioneer. Minnesota is the only state in the union that has such a law and as a consequence the returns are always delayed until the following day instead of being completed before midnight as they should be.

Out in the rural districts the farmers on the election boards are kept up so late that it practically unfits them for farm work the next day, and they are out two days when serving patriotically on such boards.

THE people wanted no deadlock in Congress, plus months of oratory.

HOW GREAT MEN MAKE LOVE

AS REVEALED BY THEIR LOVE LETTERS

By JOSEPH KAYE

(© by Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY AND ELIZABETH KAHLE

SENDING a "tintype" of himself to Elizabeth Kahle, James Whitcomb Riley, America's beloved poet, accompanied it with the following lines:

I send you a shadow ghost of a face,
To haunt you forever with eyes,
That look in your own with the tenderest grace
Affectionate art can devise.

And had they the power to sparkle and speak
In the language of smiles and tears,
The rainbow of love would illumine the cheek,
And banish the gloom that appears.

The heart correspondence between Riley and Miss Kahle lasted five years, two of which were passed without their having seen each other. The end came when Miss Kahle became Mrs. Brunn and thought it improper to continue the correspondence. The actual facts of the romance are little known as yet and one can only guess at the story underlying Riley's love letters. From Greenfield, in August 23, 1879, Riley wrote Miss Kahle:

"Your letter is so kind—so very kind and good that I must write at once to thank you for it and grab your two warm hands close in my own and wring them fervently. Only you must not be concerned about my health or welfare—anything—'cause I don't deserve such interest from anyone so good as you. I do smile though when you say 'I want to ask like I do of children when they cry, what is the matter? Tell me!'

"Surely, if you feel like that, and indeed you comprehend me just as I am—a little helpless child who would thank God with all his boyish heart if you just would—now, this minute—put your hands over my eyes and say, 'Now, you must sleep,' only—only—I want to be strong enough to bear my burden and your dear words make me weak. You don't know—you can't know—what a weight it is and how heavier it grows each weary step I take.

"Forgive me, but you mustn't be so good to me, because I want you to be happy—not like me, who cannot even lift my empty hands at times and ask God's help. You make me want to call you 'little girl.' You make me want to come to you, creeping on my face and hands, to get away from all the world and rest—rest. . . ."

After Riley's death Mrs. Brunn became addicted to spiritualism and sought and obtained—through the kindness of mediums—spirit messages from the poet. One of these messages was obtained in 1921, produced by a medium in pencil, in Riley's autograph. Here it is:

With the selfsame sunlight upon us.
I am writing dear love, somewhere,
He you would honor, he that you wish for,
Thy king, thy loved one, "over there."

It seems an insult to the memory of a genius to associate such a verse as the above with his name, even though the association is made in private. The doggerel, however, has the merit of being up-to-date, for note the popular war phrase, "over there."

Imitation Furs Are in Large Peltry Displays

Imitation fur as well as the genuine species plays a large part in the collection. There are imitation broadtail and moleskin coats and suits, and there is plush material imitating leopard skin that is more striking than it is beautiful. Real leopard skin is dyed a deep orange in a three-quarter cape.

Black costumes are as frequent and as charming as they were last season. One that is assured of great success has a corsage of black fulgurante with gauntlet cuffs and a scarf of Persian lamb. The wrapover skirt of the fur is put on with a deep scallop back and front and has a slight godet fullness.

There are many beltless tunics to the day dresses, and a new line is shown in the yokes which extend over the shoulder, giving it a drop effect. Chanel raises the waistline of her evening gowns a little above the average of the rest of her collection.

Tunic Is Featured in Many Stylish Frocks

The tunic introduced in its latest phase among the autumn models is expressed in innumerable charming styles, employing some of the many new materials and interesting combinations. It has the indorsement of the best artists, such as Alice Bernarr, Louise Boulanger, Jean Patou and Paquin.

It is done with success in frocks for every occasion, from the informal slip-on in cloth, crepe, satin, alpaca or rep, to the most elaborate gown for afternoon, theater or restaurant wear, made of the finer fabrics, the new embossed velvets, metal cloth and embroidered or beaded crepes, with the beautiful metal laces and ornate gimps.

New Use for Velvet Ribbon

Girdles of pink webbing have strips of pink velvet running lengthwise. Around the bottom of the girdles are other rows running crosswise.

GRACEFUL AFTERNOON GOWNS ELEGANT BUT UNASSERTIVE

THE simplest afternoon and dinner gowns afford greater opportunities for varying the toilette than their more ornate rivals because they are inconspicuous and allow the use of chic accessories. If one can indulge in an assortment of dresses for afternoon this consideration need not enter into the choice of styles, but the majority of women must limit themselves. They are sensible when they choose (as they usually do) graceful and simple gowns (of first-rate materials) that are elegant but not assertive in design.

A beautiful example of a dress of this character is pictured here made of black crepe de chine and adorned with beaded bands, also in black. It tells its own simple but exquisite story and is the sort of dress that its wearer will never tire of. The mode presents many versions of present styles in dresses of this character and naturally many of them are in black. With these gowns sashes, corsage ornaments, scarfs, collars, jewelry contribute means of adding color and variety.

FREE GLAND CLINIC FOR THE POOR IN ATLANTA

MANY SUFFERING UNFORTUNATES ARE BENEFITED

30 SPECIALISTS IN GLAND TREATMENT GIVE SERVICES

(By United Press)

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 11.—A gland clinic for the poor, where indigent, broken-down humanity receives free treatment daily by expert physicians, is being maintained in an unpretentious little cottage in an Atlanta suburb.

A mass of suffering unfortunates has streamed through the "Good Samaritan Clinic," said to be the first institution of its kind, and received without charge the benefits of gland treatment, cure for many ailments unsolved by scientists a decade ago.

Thirty specialists in gland diseases attend the needs of the poor who come daily for treatments. Seven of the South's foremost philanthropists support the institution by monthly donations.

Since May, 1923, the doors of the samaritanic hospital have been wide open to the poor, and only recently was the public informed of its work. Those able to afford treatment in other institutions are turned away, but none without funds is refused admittance and care.

Those treated include the physically deformed, the mentally deficient, and the moral perverts, the majority of whom, according to physicians, can be helped by the magical formulae of the new medical science.

The treatments involve the workings and disease of the "ductless glands," which according to the specialists, are so closely allied with every physical function as to be almost identifiable with the life force itself.

It is the activities of these glands, it is said, of which the thyroid and pituitary bodies are most familiar, that control the mind, the growth, the sexual nature and spiritual life of the individual.

When diet and exercise fail to relieve the excessively fat, a number of injections of the pituitary fluid taken from an animal body may accomplish the results. Likewise the mentally deficient may be helped when the undersecretion of the anterior lobe of the pituitary gland is corrected.

Many cases of course are incurable "But diseases and deformities held as hopeless only a few years ago are more gradually coming under control," one of the "Good Samaritan" doctors said. "Comparatively little is known yet of glandular activity, but phenomenal results are being secured as the knowledge of this remarkable medical science increases."

Coat Frock Makes Bow for Approval

Simple One-Piece Garments of Popular Materials Are Charming.

Length of skirt having been settled, the real novelties in the season's styles are significant, declares a fashion writer in the New York Times. The sleeve is long, down to the wrist in the new wool, crepe and silk frocks for the open, and for afternoon dress in even the georgettes, chiffons and voiles. A pretty model half covering the hand is especially popular, a subtly engaging fancy, and most becoming.

The long sleeve has been accepted wholly, and its vogue is now firmly established. It eclipses, almost eliminates, the kimono sleeve, and quite logically tightens the lines of the bodice, making a definite, fitted shoulder.

There are variants with a full-plaited "peasant" sleeve set in the arm seam, or a snug-fitting sleeve at the top, developing into a bishop shape below the elbow. But the point emphasized is the length; it will cover the arm from shoulder to wrist.

This, in the plain model, has brought into fashion the collar and cuff sets that add a dainty note to the most commonplace frock. A neck is more slender and hands are more fair when sheer batiste, net or lace in soft, creamy tint touches them at the border lines of bodice and sleeve. The simpler one-piece frocks of cloth, crepe or the many new stuffs have a demure, Quaker-like appearance that is altogether charming.

In the more elaborate gowns, such as the brocades, the beautiful new embossed velvets, the silk reps and the satins, sleeves of chiffon, full and long, trimmed with fur or flowing stuff of cloud-like texture, give an impression of elegance.

With both the skirt and the sleeve—the two conspicuous novelties of the season that have the approval by the prominent couturieres—the gown is the thing about which every one is most keen. Beginning the day, it is the coat frock, the tunic, the tailored eternal boyishness—a heritage from post-war flapperism. The new styles mark a decided step forward in dress dignity, and while the jeune fille frocks are quite as youthful as before, the mature charm of the matron has been granted a separate and necessary sphere. Indeed, some of the Paris salons have gone so far as to maintain different ateliers for youth and matron.

The second autumn innovation was the silhouette compromise. Not even the most radical critic believed that the slim silhouette could be dislodged from its firm stance in a single season, and the introduction of the flared hemline to partly share the spotlight with the straight outline has satisfied the most chronic malcontents. The newest Paris models pay homage to both silhouette types by continuing the straight line snugly over bodice and hips and confining the flare to the lowest sector of the skirt. Incidentally, the typical fall skirt is about five inches shorter than last year, reaching only to about fifteen inches off the ground.

Sleeves have left doubt behind them and have become definitely and frankly narrow and long. Except, of course, in evening gowns. The myriad types of last year have dissolved into this slender genre which has become one of the decisive landmarks of autumn fashions.

The new waistline has inherited wandering proclivities from its predecessor, but, as with other details, its meanderings seem to be in a definite direction. An idea of the diverse waistline interpretations may be had from the following data: The directoire waist is sponsored by Cheruit, Charlotte and Martial et Armand. The higher-than-normal line is exploited by Anna, Bechoff, Premet and Renee Lanvin, Chanel and Molyneux are the leading exponents of the low line, while nearly every designer includes models in his autumn collection which suggest the normal waistlines. The tubular silhouette, which precludes any waistline, is also a prominent fall note.

The Waistline of Today.

From which it is evident that the waistline may be low, normal, high, directoire or, on occasion, entirely out of the picture. Yet out of these confused tendencies there is a distinct trend toward the perceptibly marked waistline which will, from all indications, find a normal haven by next spring.

The tunic has intruded itself into the fall mode in an unmistakable manner. An important detail last season, it has been graduated into an influence, and, manifesting itself principally in tunic-blouse effects, it assumes its place as one of the milestones of autumn fashions.

Even the color note, usually more subdued in the fall, has partly forsaken the black and white combinations which have stood out so prominently in recent seasons. Any one who remembers the Easter procession of last spring remembers also the remarkable outpouring of black and white effects—easily the dominating fashion note of that day. The autumn landscape has a different setting, and in place of the ubiquitous black and white, browns, particularly the leather shades, reds in tones of russet and mahogany, and soft greens have arrived to assert their importance in the spectrum. Black and white effects have not been eliminated.

Materials follow recent precedents by differing essentially from foregoing seasons, but there is no significance to this fact other than to emphasize the growing importance of fabric styling in the realms of fashion. Ribbed silks and woolens lead the new materials—ottoman, reps and bengaline being particularly popular, while last summer's vogue for crepe satin and kasha is again reasserted this autumn.

In summation it is evident that the current styles are blazing new and tangible trails in the realms of fashion and that, despite their apparent diversity, they are directing the mode toward certain and clearly defined goals.

Molyneux Offers Changes.

While he follows to a certain extent the prevalent tendency to trim gowns more elaborately than last season, Captain Molyneux has kept his characteristic line, and thus makes gowns that are eminently dignified and wearable. He has instituted two drastic changes, totally eliminating both feathers and the scarf. To take the place of the former he is using fine rolled pieces of tulle, each about ten inches long and weighted with a single tube bead.

The straight line without any circular movement is the leading characteristic of day and evening gowns. With Molyneux the skirt is from 12 to 14 inches above the ground, and his waistline is normal to low where it is defined at all. More often he makes straight dresses occasionally with a long over-tunic which reaches to within a few inches of the skirt. In these cases a coat is made to wear over the dress, and it is of the same length as the tunic.

A feature of the coats of his three-piece costume is the little narrow cape reaching to slightly below the waistline and sewn into the side seams of the coat, so that only the lower edge gives the faintest suggestion of a cape effect.

Plaid is very successfully allied to plain woolen materials, especially Cumberland tweed for traveling suits. Red also figures largely in the collection, both as a trimming and as a basic color. An amusing ensemble has a straight black kasha coat edged with a three-inch knotted black wool fringe, under the coat is worn a straight tunic dress of scarlet kasha with a scarlet knotted fringe that peers below the black fringe of the coat. Visible still below that is a plain two-inch band of the black underskirt.

HOST OF ENTRIES FOR BIG STOCK SHOW AT KANSAS CITY

(By United Press)

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 11.—Kansas City will be host to the livestock aristocracy of the United States for a week commencing next Monday.

The largest army of livestock ever presented to the central, western or southwestern public are here being dressed down for the American Royal Livestock show and exposition November 17 to 22.

Included in the entries are the most noted of the different breeds from all over the United States and Canada.

By breeds and species the entry list follows:

Cattle: Herefords, 487; Shorthorns, 266; milking shorthorns, 83; Polled shorthorns, 52; Aberdeen Angus, 175; Galloways, 30.

Boys and girls clubs calves 100; Car lot cattle 2,500.

Swine: Chester whites 139; Durocs 114; Spotted Poland Chinas 60, Hampshires 134; Berkshires 114; Poland Chinas 114; Grades and cross breeds 18; Boys and girls club pigs 15 Car lot fat swine 500.

Sheep: Dorsets 38; Oxfords 58; Hampshires 50; Cotswolds 56;; Lincolns 34; Shropshires 45; Rambouillets 70; Southdowns 27; Car lot sheep 200.

Draft Horses: Percherons 98; Belgians 48; Clydesdales 30; Mules 80.

These figures do not include commercial horses that will compete in pulling contests or as teams, nor the dogs, poultry, guinea pigs, rabbits and cats. About 3,000 birds will be shown in the poultry section; 300 dogs and rabbits and guinea pigs will number around 350.

A half hundred internationally known stock owners and judges are here already and every indication is that the American Royal this year will far excel in size and brilliance any thing heretofore attempted in Kansas City.

ARE GUNS PART OF MOONSHINE PLANT? JUDGE THINKS NOT

St. Paul, Nov. 11.—The noes won the first bout in an argument in federal court today to decide whether a shotgun and revolver are part of a moonshine establishment's equipment.

The noes were represented by John R. Donohue, attorney for Susie F. Doffing, woman moonshiner now serving a term in Winona county jail.

Federal agents seized a shotgun and revolver belonging to her when they raided her distillery, and she has started court action to recover them. The guns had nothing to do with the plant, it was contended.

But the ayes represented by the United States district attorney, declare the guns were a very important part of the plant. They were there solely for resistance to raids, the district attorney declared.

When the federal agents visited the place, it was charged, Miss Doffing reached for the shotgun.

Judge Wilbur F. Booth issued an order requiring the federal prohibition department to show cause why the guns should not be returned.

Finds Kellogg's Bran "Easy way to avoid constipation" after suffering for years

Constipation is a dangerous disease. It can lead to many others. Twenty years' suffering with constipation undermined this man's health. Kellogg's Bran restored it—as it has done for thousands. This is what he says:

"Gentlemen:

After eating Kellogg's Bran twice a day for one month I find it not only an 'Easy Way to Avoid Constipation,' but an easy and most pleasant way to cure it. I have been troubled with constipation . . . for more than twenty years . . . after adopting the milk and bran diet I find my stomach greatly improved, and find it a specific for constipation. . . . I deem it only justice that you should know what your product has done for me, and what it is capable of doing for others."

(The original of this letter is on file at the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Mich.)

Kellogg's Bran relieves mild and chronic constipation because it is ALL bran. It brings sure results. It sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine in nature's own way. Don't experiment. Only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is guaranteed to bring permanent relief—or your grocer returns your money. You should eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

The flavor is delicious—nut-like—cooked and krumbled. Enjoy it with milk or cream, sprinkled on other cereals, cooked with hot cereals, or in the delightful recipes on every package. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by grocers everywhere.

FREE GLAND CLINIC FOR THE POOR IN ATLANTA

MANY SUFFERING UNFORTUNATES ARE BENEFITED

30 SPECIALISTS IN GLAND TREATMENT GIVE SERVICES

(By United Press)

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 11.—A gland clinic for the poor, where indigent, broken-down humanity receives free treatment daily by expert physicians, is being maintained in an unpretentious little cottage in an Atlanta suburb.

A mass of suffering unfortunates has streamed through the "Good Samaritan Clinic," said to be the first institution of its kind, and received without charge the benefits of gland treatment, cure for many ailments unsolved by scientists a decade ago.

Thirty specialists in gland diseases attend the needs of the poor who come daily for treatments. Seven of the South's foremost philanthropists support the institution by monthly donations.

Since May, 1923, the doors of the samaritanic hospital have been wide open to the poor, and only recently was the public informed of its work. Those able to afford treatment in other institutions are turned away, but none without funds is refused admittance and care.

Those treated include the physically deformed, the mentally deficient, and the moral perverts, the majority of whom, according to physicians, can be helped by the magical formulae of the new medical science.

The treatments involve the workings and disease of the "ductless glands," which according to the specialists, are so closely allied with every physical function as to be almost identifiable with the life force itself.

It is the activities of these glands, it is said, of which the thyroid and pituitary bodies are most familiar, that control the mind, the growth, the sexual nature and spiritual life of the individual.

When diet and exercise fail to relieve the excessively fat, a number of injections of the pituitary fluid taken from an animal body may accomplish the results. Likewise the mentally deficient may be helped when the undersecretion of the anterior lobe of the pituitary gland is corrected.

Many cases of course are incurable "But diseases and deformities held as hopeless only a few years ago are more gradually coming under control," one of the "Good Samaritan" doctors said. "Comparatively little is known yet of glandular activity, but phenomenal results are being secured as the knowledge of this remarkable medical science increases."

Coat Frock Makes Bow for Approval

Simple One-Piece Garments of Popular Materials Are Charming.

Length of skirt having been settled, the real novelties in the season's styles are significant, declares a fashion writer in the New York Times. The sleeve is long, down to the wrist in the new wool, crepe and silk frocks for the open, and for afternoon dress in even the georgettes, chiffons and voiles. A pretty model half covering the hand is especially popular, a subtly engaging fancy, and most becoming.

The long sleeve has been accepted wholly, and its vogue is now firmly established. It eclipses, almost eliminates, the kimono sleeve, and quite logically tightens the lines of the bodice, making a definite, fitted shoulder.

There are variants with a full-plaited "peasant" sleeve set in the arm seam, or a snug-fitting sleeve at the top, developing into a bishop shape below the elbow. But the point emphasized is the length; it will cover the arm from shoulder to wrist.

This, in the plain model, has brought into fashion the collar and cuff sets that add a dainty note to the most commonplace frock. A neck is more slender and hands are more fair when sheer batiste, net or lace in soft, creamy tint touches them at the border lines of bodice and sleeve. The simpler one-piece frocks of cloth, crepe or the many new stuffs have a demure, Quaker-like appearance that is altogether charming.

In the more elaborate gowns, such as the brocades, the beautiful new embossed velvets, the silk reps and the satins, sleeves of chiffon, full and long, trimmed with fur or flowing stuff of cloud-like texture, give an impression of elegance.

With both the skirt and the sleeve—the two conspicuous novelties of the season that have the approval by the prominent couturieres—the gown is the thing about which every one is most keen. Beginning the day, it is the coat frock, the tunic, the tailored eternal boyishness—a heritage from post-war flapperism. The new styles mark a decided step forward in dress dignity, and while the jeune fille frocks are quite as youthful as before, the mature charm of the matron has been granted a separate and necessary sphere. Indeed, some of the Paris salons have gone so far as to maintain different ateliers for youth and matron.

The second autumn innovation was the silhouette compromise. Not even the most radical critic believed that the slim silhouette could be dislodged from its firm stance in a single season, and the introduction of the flared hemline to partly share the spotlight with the straight outline has satisfied the most chronic malcontents. The newest Paris models pay homage to both silhouette types by continuing the straight line snugly over bodice and hips and confining the flare to the lowest sector of the skirt. Incidentally, the typical fall skirt is about five inches shorter than last year, reaching only to about fifteen inches off the ground.

Sleeves have left doubt behind them and have become definitely and frankly narrow and long. Except, of course, in evening gowns. The myriad types of last year have dissolved into this slender genre which has become one of the decisive landmarks of autumn fashions.

The new waistline has inherited wandering proclivities from its predecessor, but, as with other details, its meanderings seem to be in a definite direction. An idea of the diverse waistline interpretations may be had from the following data: The directoire waist is sponsored by Cheruit, Charlotte and Martial et Armand. The higher-than-normal line is exploited by Anna, Bechoff, Premet and Renee Lanvin, Chanel and Molyneux are the leading exponents of the low line, while nearly every designer includes models in his autumn collection which suggest the normal waistlines. The tubular silhouette, which precludes any waistline, is also a prominent fall note.

The Waistline of Today.

From which it is evident that the waistline may be low, normal, high, directoire or, on occasion, entirely out of the picture. Yet out of these confused tendencies there is a distinct trend toward the perceptibly marked waistline which will, from all indications, find a normal haven by next spring.

The tunic has intruded itself into the fall mode in an unmistakable manner. An important detail last season, it has been graduated into an influence, and, manifesting itself principally in tunic-blouse effects, it assumes its place as one of the milestones of autumn fashions.

Even the color note, usually more subdued in the fall, has partly forsaken the black and white combinations which have stood out so prominently in recent seasons. Any one who remembers the Easter procession of last spring remembers also the remarkable outpouring of black and white effects—easily the dominating fashion note of that day. The autumn landscape has a different setting, and in place of the ubiquitous black and white, browns, particularly the leather shades, reds in tones of russet and mahogany, and soft greens have arrived to assert their importance in the spectrum. Black and white effects have not been eliminated.

Materials follow recent precedents by differing essentially from foregoing seasons, but there is no significance to this fact other than to emphasize the growing importance of fabric styling in the realms of fashion. Ribbed silks and woolens lead the new materials—ottoman, reps and bengaline being particularly popular, while last summer's vogue for crepe satin and kasha is again reasserted this autumn.

In summation it is evident that the current styles are blazing new and tangible trails in the realms of fashion and that, despite their apparent diversity, they are directing the mode toward certain and clearly defined goals.

Molyneux Offers Changes.

While he follows to a certain extent the prevalent tendency to trim gowns more elaborately than last season, Captain Molyneux has kept his characteristic line, and thus makes gowns that are eminently dignified and wearable. He has instituted two drastic changes, totally eliminating both feathers and the scarf. To take the place of the former he is using fine rolled pieces of tulle, each about ten inches long and weighted with a single tube bead.

The straight line without any circular movement is the leading characteristic of day and evening gowns. With Molyneux the skirt is from 12 to 14 inches above the ground, and his waistline is normal to low where it is defined at all. More often he makes straight dresses occasionally with a long over-tunic which reaches to within a few inches of the skirt. In these cases a coat is made to wear over the dress, and it is of the same length as the tunic.

A feature of the coats of his three-piece costume is the little narrow cape reaching to slightly below the waistline and sewn into the side seams of the coat, so that only the lower edge gives the faintest suggestion of a cape effect.

Plaid is very successfully allied to plain woolen materials, especially Cumberland tweed for traveling suits. Red also figures largely in the collection, both as a trimming and as a basic color. An amusing ensemble has a straight black kasha coat edged with a three-inch knotted black wool fringe, under the coat is worn a straight tunic dress of scarlet kasha with a scarlet knotted fringe that peers below the black fringe of the coat. Visible still below that is a plain two-inch band of the black underskirt.

HOST OF ENTRIES FOR BIG STOCK SHOW AT KANSAS CITY

(By United Press)

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 11.—Kansas City will be host to the livestock aristocracy of the United States for a week commencing next Monday.

A half hundred internationally known stock owners and judges are here already and every indication is that the American Royal this year will far excel in size and brilliance any thing heretofore attempted in Kansas City.

ARE GUNS PART OF MOONSHINE PLANT? JUDGE THINKS NOT

St. Paul, Nov. 11.—The noes won the first bout in an argument in federal court today to decide whether a shotgun and revolver are part of a moonshine establishment's equipment.

The noes were represented by John R. Donohue, attorney for Susie F. Doffing, woman moonshiner now serving a term in Winona county jail.

Federal agents seized a shotgun and revolver belonging to her when they raided her distillery, and she has started court action to recover them. The guns had nothing to do with the plant, it was contended.

But the ayes represented by the United States district attorney, declare the guns were a very important part of the plant. They were there solely for resistance to raids, the district attorney declared.

When the federal agents visited the place, it was charged, Miss Doffing reached for the shotgun.

Judge Wilbur F. Booth issued an order requiring the federal prohibition department to show cause why the guns should not be returned.

Finds Kellogg's Bran "Easy way to avoid constipation" after suffering for years

Constipation is a dangerous disease. It can lead to many others. Twenty years' suffering with constipation undermined this man's health. Kellogg's Bran restored it—as it has done for thousands. This is what he says:

"Gentlemen:

After eating Kellogg's Bran twice a day for one month I find it not only an 'Easy Way to Avoid Constipation,' but an easy and most pleasant way to cure it. I have been troubled with constipation . . . for more than twenty years . . . after adopting the milk and bran diet I find my stomach greatly improved, and find it a specific for constipation.

. . . I deem it only justice that you should know what your product has done for me, and what it is capable of doing for others."

(The original of this letter is on file at the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Mich.)

Kellogg's Bran relieves mild and chronic constipation because it is ALL bran. It brings sure results. It sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine in nature's own way. Don't experiment. Only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is guaranteed to bring permanent relief—or your grocer returns your money. You should eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

The flavor is delicious—nut-like—cooked and krumbled. Enjoy it with milk or cream, sprinkled on other cereals, cooked with hot cereals, or in the delightful recipes on every package. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by grocers everywhere.

ARMISTICE DAY EXERCISES HELD

Appropriate exercises were conducted in the main assembly this morning to celebrate Armistice Day.

Under the direction of Miss Rickard and Lorraine Morrison at the piano the students sang several selections after which Miss Tornstrom gave a short address taken from the speech of one Raymond Robins who spoke at the M. E. A. convention in Minneapolis last week.

The subject was "Outlawry of War." "War is the slaughter of the youth of the nation," said Mr. Robins "and should be prevented and made illegal by international law and agreements between nations." The outstanding argument for the necessity of abolishment of war is the fact that in the next strife the nature and manner of fighting will be more terrible and fierce than ever before. This is clearly shown by the invention of new gases and gas-bombs which are so destructive that no gas-mask or other contrivance can protect the wearer from its deadly poison. In years gone by, duelling was thought the only way of settling disputes and petty quarrels but has since been abolished by the civilized nations of the world. A duel when fought was a battle between individuals but war is between nations; and until nations abolish wars as they abolished the duel there can be no progress and safety in the world of today.

The program was concluded by singing "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner." The High School then marched down to the opera house where they were dismissed for the day.

WHO, WHAT AND WHERE

A statewide competition high school musical organization will be fostered this winter by the extension division of the University of Minnesota leading up to a final meeting on the university campus, in which the best vocal and instrumental organizations will be selected.

As it is Armistice Day, the students are favored with a half-holiday, today, giving plenty of opportunity for boosters to be present and help win over our ancient rival and down-river team, Little Falls.

The Brainonian staff believes that the students are to be complimented upon the support they furnished throughout this year's football season. At the Crosby game, played at Crosby, Brainerd fans exceeded the number of Crosby's own rooters. Let's keep this spirit for the coming basket ball season.

The Hi-Y club staged another "regular, old-time bean feed" at the Y. M. C. A. last Wednesday, 28 hearty eaters being present. City Attorney Harry Fullerton was the principal speaker of the evening.

News For the Alma Mater

Bob Hill, '21, attended the Minnesota-Michigan game last Saturday. No doubt football brings back sweet memories to Bob.

Theresa Emilson, '23, is a Senior at St. Cloud normal. Theresa was such a peppy girl.

Ellen Finney, '23, is also at the St. Cloud normal. We don't hear much from Ellen, her spare time must be occupied by some more interesting subject.

Marie Guinn, '22, is teaching at the South Long Lake school. This is Marie's second year teaching.

Alice Swanson, '23, is teaching at Grove Lake school. Alice had a basket social last week. We imagine her basket won the most money.

William Zakariasen, '24, who is attending Carleton College, visited school last week.

Maysie Carmichael, '24, who is employed by the Brainerd Gas company, visited school last week. Maysie did not succeed very well in her first day at school.

Mildred Brown, '24, is training at St. Luke's Hospital in San Francisco. Pill hasn't her hair bobbed as yet.

BANQUETS CLOSE POLITICAL CLUBS

The grand finale of the activities of the political clubs in Miss Larson's American History class took place in the form of a complimentary banquet in which the Progressives and Democrats paid their respects to the victorious Republicans whose candidate, Calvin Coolidge, was re-elected to the presidency.

The Progressives and Democrats had comparatively few feminine followers, so the task of preparing the feast fell upon the shoulders of Eleanor Nolan and Elsie Linn. The manner in which everything disappeared showed that the two defeated parties had at least two excellent chefs in their ranks.

Martius Seeger proved himself to be a very efficient toastmaster. Martius was in his element and his natural genius for giving witty, impromptu speeches, caused the room, time after time, to ring with laughter. Various of the diners were called upon to talk, great applause following their remarks.

After a hotly contested game of basketball between the boys and the girls the class went to the Chamber of Commerce where the election returns, greatly to the disgust of both Democrats and Progressives proved beyond a doubt that it was a republican victory and that the contest would not even be carried to the House, the dying hope of the Progressives.

The Return Party

The republicans so appreciated the generosity of the two opposing parties that a return party was given in their honor Friday night. Odd Fellows Hall was secured for the occasion and midst music, games and other entertainment an enjoyable time was spent. Features of the evening was a solo sung by Wendell Burns, jig performed by Miss Larson, a prophetic speech by Roy Ericcson, a string chewing contest in which Lorraine Morrison defeated her rival Clayton Larson, Sylvia Foster's avowal of love to Harry Lyddon, a hippety-hop exhibition by Gertrude Link and Harry Lyddon, etc.—last but not least the eats.

The only regret of the political club is that presidential campaigns do not come oftener for when the next four years have passed most of the members will be traveling along life's highway in some capacity or other and each will do his campaigning with stronger faces. It is with deep sorrow that they will leave their American History class. May the memory of it never grow dim.

England's Tiny Churches

Culbone church, near the borders of Exmoor, is one of England's tiniest churches. It is situated in a deep glen, and is entirely out of focus of the sun's rays during some months of the year. The clergyman of the parish of Oare, of Jan Ridd fame, officiates at the services in this tiny sanctuary, in addition to his duties at the little church in which was performed the marriage ceremony of Lorna Doone and Jan Ridd. It is said to be smaller than Upleatham church, near Redcar, which measures 17 by 13 feet 9 inches. Lillington church, in Sussex, is still smaller, being only 16 feet square. It is built of flints, and has a wooden steeple. Shropshire claims to have churches still smaller.

Faithfulness

The deepest hunger of a faithful heart is faithfulness.—George Eliot.

GIRLS BASKET BALL

The girls of the B. H. S. have shown a hundred per cent school spirit by coming out for the basket ball tryout. One would say that this was a credit to the school because most of these girls have had but little practice and with what practice they have had they worked hard to make the squads.

The ideal situation would be to allow any girl to play who wished, but because of the necessity of using the gym for both the girls and boys this of course, is impossible. As a result only fourteen or sixteen girls were chosen from each class to represent their class in basket ball. The following constitute the squads for the various classes:

FACULTY ATTENDS M. E. A. MEETING

The High School was deserted by many of the faculty the latter part of last week who left to attend the Minnesota Educational Association. Mr. Krueger, the first to go, left on Wednesday noon. Miss Lohr, Miss Oerting, Miss Uglum, Miss Tornstrom, Miss Schow, Miss Laipple, Miss Spink, Miss Wanous, and Mr. Johnson left Wednesday at 3:30. Miss Smith stayed over until Friday morning.

Classes were held by the teachers who remained, and students were required to be present only at classes. However, the assembly was usually full of students who were preparing for the next class. Lucky was the pupil who only had one class, but many still had three clsases and a not too short assignment left by the departing instructor. Ma Billings was greatly patronized by the pupils during their vacant periods.

Miss Tornstrom before making her departure admonished the worthy Seniors that she trusted them to help maintain the dignity of the school. Although we were placed on the "A" Honor Roll for a couple of days, students were not to spend their vacant periods wandering around the building.

The school, bereft of the principal, progressed efficiently under the assistant principal, Miss Juel O'Brien.

Due to the absence of Mr. Krueger, there was no gym for the boys—the girls, too, missed their usual hikes and games.

The fact that made these two days real holidays for the school was that all classes were run in the morning, each being thirty minutes long. This gave everybody the whole afternoon free on each day.

Bobbed Hair Long Ago

"The new woman" will no longer be able to employ as a sign of her emancipation a bobbed head of hair. It has just been discovered in the little town of Wymington, Northamptonshire, that this fashion is at least five hundred years old. The restoration of the parish church there has revealed a painting depicting women with their hair bobbed in the style of 1924.

Hidden under coating of thin plaster were discovered wall paintings representing the resurrection and the judgment. The plaster has now been carefully removed to show the decorations. Most of the figures in the paintings are women. Some have their hair falling about the shoulders, but the artist has given the majority short hair, cut exactly in the manner of the modern girl's coiffure.

The vicar, Rev. C. L. Drew, believes the paintings are of the same age as the church, which was built in 1350.

Sunday Thought

Pleasure that comes unlooked-for is thrice welcome; and, if it stir the heart, if augat be there, that may hereafter in a thoughtful hour wake but a sigh, 'tis treasured up among the things most precious, and the day it came is noted as a white day in our lives.—Rogers.

STUDYING OLD TESTAMENT STORIES

The fifth period English I class has been working and studying diligently on Old Testament Stories. They have been completed now so to test our intelligence a spell-down was held. It was very exciting, too, and at the critical moment when the sides were even two to two the bell rang. It was a very unlucky moment for it to ring but we will take that up again. ARMISTICE DAY EXERCISES HELD

Appropriate exercises were conducted in the main assembly this morning to celebrate Armistice Day.

Under the direction of Miss Rickard and Lorraine Morrison at the piano the students sang several selections after which Miss Tornstrom gave a short address taken from the speech of one Raymond Robins who spoke at the M. E. A. convention in Minneapolis last week.

The subject was "Outlawry of War." "War is the slaughter of the youth of the nation," said Mr. Robins "and should be prevented and made illegal by international law and agreements between nations." The outstanding argument for the necessity of abolishment of war is the fact that in the next strife the nature and manner of fighting will be more terrible and fierce than ever before. This is clearly shown by the invention of new gases and gas-bombs which are so destructive that no gas-mask or other contrivance can protect the wearer from its deadly poison. In years gone by, duelling was thought the only way of settling disputes and petty quarrels but has since been abolished by the civilized nations of the world. A duel when fought was a battle between individuals but war is between nations; and until nations abolish wars as they abolished the duel there can be no progress and safety in the world of today.

The program was concluded by singing "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner." The High School then marched down to the opera house where they were dismissed for the day.

WHO, WHAT AND WHERE

A statewide competition high school musical organization will be fostered this winter by the extension division of the University of Minnesota leading up to a final meeting on the university campus, in which the best vocal and instrumental organizations will be selected.

The Y. M. C. A. scored the first victory in the series of races versus the high school by a score of 29 to 26. Tomorrow at five a one-mile race will be staged at Gregory Park. Let's go, gang!

Judging from the city and county election returns we may truthfully state, "As the high school goes, so goes the county and city."

The Brainerd high "eleven" is playing Litlte Falls today in the final clash of the season. Details will appear in tomorrow's Dispatch.

* * *

As it is Armistice Day, the students are favored with a half-holiday, today, giving plenty of opportunity for boosters to be present and help win over our ancient rival and down-river team, Little Falls.

* * *

The Brainonian staff believes that the students are to be complimented upon the support they furnished throughout this year's football season. At the Crosby game, played at Crosby, Brainerd fans exceeded the number of Crosby's own rooters. Let's keep this spirit for the coming basket ball season.

The Hi-Y club staged another "regular, old-time bean feed" at the Y. M. C. A. last Wednesday, 28 hearty eaters being present. City Attorney Harry Fullerton was the principal speaker of the evening.

Our freshmen are bright. William Johnstone still persists in wearing his red socks to school.

News For the Alma Mater

Bob Hill, '21, attended the Minnesota-Michigan game last Saturday. No doubt football brings back sweet memories to Bob.

Theresa Emilson, '23, is a Senior at St. Cloud normal. Theresa was such a peppy girl.

Ellen Finney, '23, is also at the St. Cloud normal. We don't hear much from Ellen, her spare time must be occupied by some more interesting subject.

Marie Guinn, '22, is teaching at the South Long Lake school. This is Marie's second year teaching.

Alice Swanson, '23, is teaching at Grove Lake school. Alice had a basket social last week. We imagine her basket won the most money.

William Zakariasen, '24, who is attending Carleton College, visited school last week.

Maysie Carmichael, '24, who is employed by the Brainerd Gas company, visited school last week. Maysie did not succeed very well in her first day at school.

Mildred Brown, '24, is training at St. Luke's Hospital in San Francisco. Pill hasn't her hair bobbed as yet.

BANQUETS CLOSE POLITICAL CLUBS

The grand finale of the activities of the political clubs in Miss Larson's American History class took place in the form of a complimentary banquet in which the Progressives and Democrats paid their respects to the victorious Republicans whose candidate, Calvin Coolidge, was re-elected to the presidency.

The Progressives and Democrats had comparatively few feminine followers, so the task of preparing the feast fell upon the shoulders of Eleanor Nolan and Elsie Linn. The manner in which everything disappeared showed that the two defeated parties had at least two excellent chefs in their ranks.

Martius Seeger proved himself to be a very efficient toastmaster. Martius was in his element and his natural genius for giving witty, impromptu speeches, caused the room, time after time, to ring with laughter. Various of the diners were called upon to talk, great applause following their remarks.

After a hotly contested game of basketball between the boys and the girls the class went to the Chamber of Commerce where the election returns, greatly to the disgust of both Democrats and Progressives proved beyond a doubt that it was a republican victory and that the contest would not even be carried to the House, the dying hope of the Progressives.

The Return Party

The republicans so appreciated the generosity of the two opposing parties that a return party was given in their honor Friday night. Odd Fellows Hall was secured for the occasion and midst music, games and other entertainment an enjoyable time was spent. Features of the evening was a solo sung by Wendell Burns, jig performed by Miss Larson, a prophetic speech by Roy Ericcson, a string chewing contest in which Lorraine Morrison defeated her rival Clayton Larson, Sylvia Foster's avowal of love to Harry Lyddon, a hippety-hop exhibition by Gertrude Link and Harry Lyddon, etc.—last but not least the eats.

The only regret of the political club is that presidential campaigns do not come oftener for when the next four years have passed most of the members will be traveling along life's highway in some capacity or other and each will do his campaigning with stronger faces. It is with deep sorrow that they will leave their American History class. May the memory of it never grow dim.

England's Tiny Churches

Culbone church, near the borders of Exmoor, is one of England's tiniest churches. It is situated in a deep glen, and is entirely out of focus of the sun's rays during some months of the year. The clergyman of the parish of Oare, of Jan Ridd fame, officiates at the services in this tiny sanctuary, in addition to his duties at the little church in which was performed the marriage ceremony of Lorna Doone and Jan Ridd. It is said to be smaller than Upleatham church, near Redcar, which measures 17 by 13 feet 9 inches. Lillington church, in Sussex, is still smaller, being only 16 feet square. It is built of flints, and has a wooden steeple. Shropshire claims to have churches still smaller.

Faithfulness

The deepest hunger of a faithful heart is faithfulness.—George Eliot.

GIRLS BASKET BALL

The girls of the B. H. S. have shown a hundred per cent school spirit by coming out for the basket ball tryout. One would say that this was a credit to the school because most of these girls have had but little practice and with what practice they have had they worked hard to make the squads.

The ideal situation would be to allow any girl to play who wished, but because of the necessity of using the gym for both the girls and boys this of course, is impossible. As a result only fourteen or sixteen girls were chosen from each class to represent their class in basket ball. The following constitute the squads for the various classes:

FACULTY ATTENDS M. E. A. MEETING

The High School was deserted by many of the faculty the latter part of last week who left to attend the Minnesota Educational Association. Mr. Krueger, the first to go, left on Wednesday noon. Miss Lohr, Miss Oerting, Miss Uglum, Miss Tornstrom, Miss Schow, Miss Laipple, Miss Spink, Miss Wanous, and Mr. Johnson left Wednesday at 3:30. Miss Smith stayed over until Friday morning.

Classes were held by the teachers who remained, and students were required to be present only at classes. However, the assembly was usually full of students who were preparing for the next class. Lucky was the pupil who only had one class, but many still had three clsases and a not too short assignment left by the departing instructor. Ma Billings was greatly patronized by the pupils during their vacant periods.

Miss Tornstrom before making her departure admonished the worthy Seniors that she trusted them to help maintain the dignity of the school. Although we were placed on the "A" Honor Roll for a couple of days, students were not to spend their vacant periods wandering around the building.

The school, bereft of the principal, progressed efficiently under the assistant principal, Miss Juel O'Brien.

Due to the absence of Mr. Krueger, there was no gym for the boys—the girls, too, missed their usual hikes and games.

The fact that made these two days real holidays for the school was that all classes were run in the morning, each being thirty minutes long. This gave everybody the whole afternoon free on each day.

Bobbed Hair Long Ago

"The new woman" will no longer be able to employ as a sign of her emancipation a bobbed head of hair. It has just been discovered in the little town of Wymington, Northamptonshire, that this fashion is at least five hundred years old. The restoration of the parish church there has revealed a painting depicting women with their hair bobbed in the style of 1924.

Hidden under coating of thin plaster were discovered wall paintings representing the resurrection and the judgment. The plaster has now been carefully removed to show the decorations. Most of the figures in the paintings are women. Some have their hair falling about the shoulders, but the artist has given the majority short hair, cut exactly in the manner of the modern girl's coiffure.

The vicar, Rev. C. L. Drew, believes the paintings are of the same age as the church, which was built in 1350.

Sunday Thought

Pleasure that comes unlooked-for is thrice welcome; and, if it stir the heart, if aught be there, that may hereafter in a thoughtful hour wake but a sigh, 'tis treasured up among the things most precious, and the day it came is noted as a white day in our lives.—Rogers.

STUDYING OLD TESTAMENT STORIES

The fifth period English I class has been working and studying diligently on Old Testament Stories. They have been completed now so to test our intelligence a spell-down was held. It was very exciting, too, and at the critical moment when the sides were even two to two the bell rang. It was a very unlucky moment for it to ring but we will take that up again. Because we were so remarkably intelligent, Miss Jorandby thrust upon us another test, one that had to be written in pen and ink. The results of this were promising as far as they can be secured.

The poor students have no rest because as soon as they were finished Miss Jorandby gave them the first story of the Literary Readings to prepare for next class, Sohrab and Rustum.

SMRAKER POOL HALL DISCUSSED

Council at Last Night's Session Revokes License of the Place

FOLLOWS GRAND JURY ACTION

Bids Received by Council on Sewer Construction N. E. and S. E. Brainerd

A bit of color was injected into the adjourned meeting of the city council on Monday evening, when the communication of the clerk of the district court to the council, bearing the report of the findings of the grand jury regarding the Smraker pool hall was read.

The president of the council, with the approval of a majority of the council, had invited the county attorney and the sheriff to address that body. They told of the results of their investigations and how the grand jury had arrived at their own conclusions without their knowledge that the report regarding the Smraker pool hall was to be made.

The mayor advised taking time to investigate before taking action, but he was reminded that one of the Smraker brothers had been summoned to appear before the council and warned that unless his place was improved that the council would feel it its duty to the community to revoke the license.

A motion was made to refer the matter to the police committee, to report at the next meeting. This motion was lost. A motion was then made to revoke the license of the Smraker pool hall, which was carried.

The president of the council explained that this was as far as the council could go, and that further action was up to the police. During a somewhat heated discussion, the mayor said he would do his utmost to clean out the bootleggers. The difficulty of ridding the community of bootleggers was discussed, and it was stated that so much of this traffic is done in such a manner that evidence is very hard to secure; that men meet and transfer the liquor in secluded places.

On motion carried bids on sewer construction in Northeast and Southeast, Brainerd were opened. Two bids were received, one from the Sherlund Company, the other from J. C. Hammett, both of Brainerd. These bids are as follows:

The Sherlund Company's bid on Sewer A5a, Southeast Brainerd, $1.40 per foot, total, $1,129.80. A clause was attached stating that in case of striking quicksand a charge of ten per cent plus the charge of laying the sewer would be made. The bid on sewer C12a a bid of $1.40 per foot was made, totaling, $873.60. This sewer is to be constructed in Northeast Brainerd. A certified check for $125 accompanied the bid.

J. C. Hammett's bid was as follows: Lateral sewer A5a, $2.27 per foot, totaling $1,831.89; Sewer C12a, $2.34 per foot, a total of $1,460.16. A clause was attached to the effect that in case of striking quicksand, a charge of twenty per cent would be made in addition to the bid. A certified check for $165 was attached.

Alderman Wesley offered a resolution, supported by Alderman Ritari, that these sewers be constructed, and that the bid of the Sherlund Company be accepted at the above prices. All voted in favor of this resolution, and on motion the certified check of J. C. Hammett was returned to him.

Grading Pine Street

On motion the matter of grading Pine street was layed over until next spring.

A. G. Anderson appeared before the council and requested aid for two very old people who he stated are entirely destitute. On motion this was referred to the aldermen of the Fourth ward.

E. O. Webb requested permission to install steel doors at his property on Front street, same to be flush with the sidewalk. On motion, this request was granted, subject to the approval of the city engineer as to its construction.

Ladies Band Petition

A petition was received from the ladies band, signed by Mrs. Gladys Niles, its president, and Miss Esther Nelson, secretary, asking permission to use the rest room in the basement of the city hall for rehearsals, which are to be held each Wednesday evening. On motion, this permission was granted.

On motion, the city engineer was instructed to place a fence at the end of South Seventh street, known as the Hayes corner, which is considered dangerous because of the ravine crossing the street at this point.

On motion of Aldermen Quanstrom and R. H. Paine, carried, it was decided that at any time any of the city police are off duty and working elsewhere, his wages shall be deducted while he is off duty, this to apply to all members of the police force.

Council Canvasses Returns

The council then canvassed the returns of the special election held on Tuesday, November 4th, at which time two charter amendments were placed before the voters. Following are the official returns of this election:

	Amendment No. 1			Amendment No. 2

WAR MUST BE OUTLAWED TODAY

Rev. E. A. Cooke So States in Armistice Day Address at New Park Theatre

SLAVERY WAS ABOLISHED

And So Will War Too, Said Speaker in Conclusion

"War must be outlawed and it is up to America to take the initiative in this regard," said Rev. E. A. Cooke, in his Armistice Day address in the New Park theatre Tuesday morning.

"The world war was a war to stop war" continued the speaker, "And future conflicts can be avoided." He cited to prove this point the fact that before the Civil war it was the popular opinion that slavery could not be abolished, and only a few years ago it was the popular opinion that no such enactment as the Eighteenth amendment could be carried. Both important subjects have been disposed of, and it was the speaker's belief that future wars can be abolished just as effectively.

The aggressor, the country responsible for a future war, should be fined in a financial manner, said Rev. Cooke, the other countries joining to confiscate the aggressor's property and take away its liberties as concerns trade with other nations, etc.

Such handling of the problem of war would take its money power away, there would be no more profiteering as the results of war, and it was the speaker's belief that such a program will be read into the treaties between nations, so that in the future justice will reign supreme.

Old Glory shall lead the world and be the means of bringing about the greatest good for all mankind, said Mr. Cooke in his closing remarks.

The New Park theatre was crowded to its capacity with an attentive audience, gathered to pay its tribute to those who died in the recent war, and to celebrate with those who are living, the day that the great conflict was closed. Many public school children were included in the audience, the schools closing that the pupils might attend.

The program opened with the singing of "America," and the invocation, the latter by Rev. A. G. Patterson, pastor of the Presbyterian church. Commander Kirk J. Smith of the American Legion was in charge of the exercises.

Commander Smith reviewed the reasons for Armistice Day, and appealed to his comrades to devote a part of their lives to patriotic service. He expressed the need of such an occasion annually to bring forcefully to mind the responsibility on each individual to render such a service.

The eleventh hour was observed as a part of the program, the audience standing with bowed heads for thirty seconds of silent prayer, offered for the departed comrades.

The exercises closed with the entire assemblage singing the Star Spangled Banner, led by A. C. Mraz, who also sang a solo during the program. Mrs. Walter F. Wieland presided at the piano.

The stage at the theatre was appropriately decorated, the stars and stripes standing at one side of the stage, and the post banner at the other. Much of the success of the program is due to George Sweet and his special committee that had charge of its preparation.

Business houses in the city closed for two hours, from ten o'clock until noon, as a courtesy to the American Legion, and so that both merchants and their clerks might attend the program.

SMRAKER POOL HALL DISCUSSED

Council at Last Night's Session Revokes License of the Place

FOLLOWS GRAND JURY ACTION

Bids Received by Council on Sewer Construction N. E. and S. E. Brainerd

A bit of color was injected into the adjourned meeting of the city council on Monday evening, when the communication of the clerk of the district court to the council, bearing the report of the findings of the grand jury regarding the Smraker pool hall was read.

The president of the council, with the approval of a majority of the council, had invited the county attorney and the sheriff to address that body. They told of the results of their investigations and how the grand jury had arrived at their own conclusions without their knowledge that the report regarding the Smraker pool hall was to be made.

The mayor advised taking time to investigate before taking action, but he was reminded that one of the Smraker brothers had been summoned to appear before the council and warned that unless his place was improved that the council would feel it its duty to the community to revoke the license.

A motion was made to refer the matter to the police committee, to report at the next meeting. This motion was lost. A motion was then made to revoke the license of the Smraker pool hall, which was carried.

The president of the council explained that this was as far as the council could go, and that further action was up to the police. During a somewhat heated discussion, the mayor said he would do his utmost to clean out the bootleggers. The difficulty of ridding the community of bootleggers was discussed, and it was stated that so much of this traffic is done in such a manner that evidence is very hard to secure; that men meet and transfer the liquor in secluded places.

On motion carried bids on sewer construction in Northeast and Southeast, Brainerd were opened. Two bids were received, one from the Sherlund Company, the other from J. C. Hammett, both of Brainerd. These bids are as follows:

The Sherlund Company's bid on Sewer A5a, Southeast Brainerd, $1.40 per foot, total, $1,129.80. A clause was attached stating that in case of striking quicksand a charge of ten per cent plus the charge of laying the sewer would be made. The bid on sewer C12a a bid of $1.40 per foot was made, totaling, $873.60. This sewer is to be constructed in Northeast Brainerd. A certified check for $125 accompanied the bid.

J. C. Hammett's bid was as follows: Lateral sewer A5a, $2.27 per foot, totaling $1,831.89; Sewer C12a, $2.34 per foot, a total of $1,460.16. A clause was attached to the effect that in case of striking quicksand, a charge of twenty per cent would be made in addition to the bid. A certified check for $165 was attached.

Alderman Wesley offered a resolution, supported by Alderman Ritari, that these sewers be constructed, and that the bid of the Sherlund Company be accepted at the above prices. All voted in favor of this resolution, and on motion the certified check of J. C. Hammett was returned to him.

Grading Pine Street

On motion the matter of grading Pine street was layed over until next spring.

A. G. Anderson appeared before the council and requested aid for two very old people who he stated are entirely destitute. On motion this was referred to the aldermen of the Fourth ward.

E. O. Webb requested permission to install steel doors at his property on Front street, same to be flush with the sidewalk. On motion, this request was granted, subject to the approval of the city engineer as to its construction.

Ladies Band Petition

A petition was received from the ladies band, signed by Mrs. Gladys Niles, its president, and Miss Esther Nelson, secretary, asking permission to use the rest room in the basement of the city hall for rehearsals, which are to be held each Wednesday evening. On motion, this permission was granted.

On motion, the city engineer was instructed to place a fence at the end of South Seventh street, known as the Hayes corner, which is considered dangerous because of the ravine crossing the street at this point.

On motion of Aldermen Quanstrom and R. H. Paine, carried, it was decided that at any time any of the city police are off duty and working elsewhere, his wages shall be deducted while he is off duty, this to apply to all members of the police force.

Council Canvasses Returns

The council then canvassed the returns of the special election held on Tuesday, November 4th, at which time two charter amendments were placed before the voters. Following are the official returns of this election:

	Amendment No. 1			Amendment No. 2
	Yes	No	B.	Yes	No	B.

All members of the council were present except Alderman C. H. Paine.

ROCKNE TELLS HOW NOTRE DAME DOES IT

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 11.—"These high school sensations don't appeal much to me. Look around here at this bunch and you won't find a single one of them. Some of these boys never had their hands on a football before they reported. I'd rather develop them myself."

Knute Rockne, head coach of the Notre Dame football team, swept his hand over a big field and indicated a bunch of perhaps 150 players in football togs among whom were about 70 in the green sweaters that identify the freshman team.

"See that young fellow there," he continued, "he never played football before this Fall. I picked him out as he walked across the campus because he had loose hips. He's taking to the game like he was born for it. Next year he's going to be a sensational halfback. Don't let anyone tell you that I bought him during the summer. They're saying things like that."

Rockne seldom pays attention to or replies to criticism or attacks upon the integrity of the Notre Dame football season. On a recent visit to Notre Dame, the writer found Rockne aroused, more to mirth than wrath, however, by a story that he organized a big summer school for coaches and kept his squad at the university all summer so that his pupils could drill the team and teach them new stunts.

"I wouldn't reply to an ass who made a statement like that, because it is too foolish, but to other critics I will sometimes make a reply. They say that Notre Dame is a tramp team and that it plays from home too much. To them I will say that Notre Dame is forced to travel to get games, because no good teams in the Middle-West will play Notre Dame, and, also, as long as the boys on that squad get good scholastic grades and as long as their parents do not complain that they are getting too much football, it's nobody's business where we play, when we play or how often we play.

"Some of those critics can't understand why we get so much good freshman material. They seem to think that we have some way of inducing a great high school player to come to Notre Dame. As I said before, we haven't any high school sensations here. Did you ever hear of Gipp, Crowley, Miller, Stuhldreher or Layden as sensational high school players? Of course, you didn't and neither did I."

SCHLAIFER FOULS MALONE TWICE, TIES UP PURSE

JOCK HAD KNOCKED HIM SILLY WITH A PUNCH TO THE JAW

BOXING COMMISSION SEIZES THE PURSE, PENDING INVESTIGATION

(By United Press)

St. Paul, Nov. 11.—After being knocked silly by a right-hand punch to the jaw, Morrie Schlaifer, the Omaha bad man, fouled Jock Malone twice last night, losing the fight and tieing up the purse. The boxing commission seized the purse pending investigation.

It was in the third round when Malone socked Schlaifer on the button. Schlaifer went down but was too dizzy to take advantage of the count. He hopped up and started an apparently aimless milling, a left-hand blow catching Malone in the groin and inflicting some pain. Malone was offered the fight by the referee but brushed him aside, intent on finishing Schlaifer. Then Schlaifer let loose another wild one, bringing his full power to bear in a blow to the groin. Malone's hand was raised in victory, then he collapsed on the canvas, where doctors treated him.

STAGG'S STRATEGY MAKES TITLE RACE A FREE-FOR-ALL

Chicago, Nov. 11.—The strategy and cunning of Amos Alonzo Stagg, for 33 years football coach at the University of Chicago, has again thrown the big ten title race into a free-for-all.

Bob Zuppke's Illinois eleven, last week considered "in" as champions of the middle west conference, suffered a humiliating tie at the hands of Stagg's Maroons and now it's only a matter of endurance to decide the title.

Illinois has yet to meet Minnesota and Ohio State. Neither team is likely to arise from mediocrity as did Chicago, and Zuppke's team probably will finish the season undefeated. The Illini tribe then will claim the title by virtue of the fact it was tied only once while Chicago suffered two even breaks. They will also point to the fact by beating Ohio—a team which held Chicago to a tie—they have undisputed right to the championship. Chicago meets Northwestern this week and then Wisconsin. If Stagg's charges retain the strength they showed against Illinois, they should come through without a scratch, and also will claim the title. To counter the Illini claim that they were tied twice, Chicago will point to the fact that they played one more game than Illinois.

But when two great teams play to a tie, no one can determine which is champion. It will simply be an undecided race like last year when Illinois and Michigan completed their schedules without a defeat.

Stagg tied Illinois Saturday by sheer strategy. Everybody thought he'd be on the defensive—trying desperately to stop the mighty Red Grange. Instead, he grabbed the offensive from the start and scored two touchdowns before Grange was given the ball. Nothing but a fighting heart—and a brilliant run by Grange—allowed Illinois to even the count.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Equipment of Oscar Knop, Chicago Bear football, team fullback, with a compass was under consideration today.

Stealing second with the bases full was compared with Oscar's act in the Bear-Columbus Tiger game yesterday wherein the mountain man fullback scooped up a fumble and ran 35 yards toward his own goal before tackled by a teammate to prevent him from scoring for the opposition.

Oscar merely became mixed in directions, he said, and the derisive yells that greeted his run were mistaken for cheering. "RED" GRANGE NO DOUBT WILL UPSET MINNESOTA PLANS

Harold (Red) Grange, the "terror of the big ten conference," is to be entertained at the Memorial stadium at the University of Minnesota next Saturday.

Back in 1916 when Minnesota had her greatest football machine and was running wild over her opponents Illinois came here to be slaughtered. Walter Camp as well as other noted football critics were in the press box giving the Gophers the "double-o" for all-American prospects. Then it happened.

The sure thing Minnesota team went to pieces in the first half and before the period was over Illinois had piled up a big enough lead to keep Minnesota on the short end of a 13 to 9 score—it may have been 14 to 9, we just don't recall at the present moment.

This Saturday Minnesota takes the place of the 1916 Illinois team and what the boys are going to hear tonight from Coach Spaulding will perhaps give them enough courage and spirit to step out on the field and do the impossible.

Grange is human. He may strike the football public as a super-human but he really is human and somebody is going to stop him some day and why not Minnesota? Bill is going to tell his boys just that much.

Tomorrow will find the frosh using a series of Illinois plays, brought back by Campbell Dixon. The entire varsity squad is in good shape and it will be sent through several drills this week in preparation of doing what is improbable but far from impossible.

The Minnesota line from tackle to tackle is rated as a mighty good defense and Grange will have more trouble than he expects in breaking through. It is the ends that are worrying Spaulding and special efforts will be made to develop a defense on the wings.—St. Paul Daily News.

Thrilling Race Track Story at Lyceum Tonight

"Riders Up," to be shown at the Lyceum Theatre tonight and Wednesday, was adapted from the Red Book Magazine story "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," by Gerald Beaumont. It is a story of race track life, and the hero is a tout.

Persons familiar with the manner of men who make a living by disposing of information concerning race horses have said that the magazine story is one of the most natural human interest stories ever told of race track activities.

Picture was filmed in Tia Juana. Real races and many real track and stable attaches being shown as atmosphere. Creighton Hale, George Cooper, Robert Brower, Kate Price and Edith Yorke are in the cast which Irving Cummings, who has directed some of Universal's biggest successes, made.

The story is that of a youth who drifted onto the race track after saying goodbye to his widowed mother and his sister in a little New England village. They believed him engaged in a big business venture and are waiting anxiously for him to keep his oft-made promise to come home.

Finally he has a lucky day and prepares to keep his promise but the plight of an aged friend convinces him that he is justified in once more postponing his visit.

ROCKNE TELLS HOW NOTRE DAME DOES IT

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 11.—"These high school sensations don't appeal much to me. Look around here at this bunch and you won't find a single one of them. Some of these boys never had their hands on a football before they reported. I'd rather develop them myself."

Knute Rockne, head coach of the Notre Dame football team, swept his hand over a big field and indicated a bunch of perhaps 150 players in football togs among whom were about 70 in the green sweaters that identify the freshman team.

"See that young fellow there," he continued, "he never played football before this Fall. I picked him out as he walked across the campus because he had loose hips. He's taking to the game like he was born for it. Next year he's going to be a sensational halfback. Don't let anyone tell you that I bought him during the summer. They're saying things like that."

Rockne seldom pays attention to or replies to criticism or attacks upon the integrity of the Notre Dame football season. On a recent visit to Notre Dame, the writer found Rockne aroused, more to mirth than wrath, however, by a story that he organized a big summer school for coaches and kept his squad at the university all summer so that his pupils could drill the team and teach them new stunts.

"I wouldn't reply to an ass who made a statement like that, because it is too foolish, but to other critics I will sometimes make a reply. They say that Notre Dame is a tramp team and that it plays from home too much. To them I will say that Notre Dame is forced to travel to get games, because no good teams in the Middle-West will play Notre Dame, and, also, as long as the boys on that squad get good scholastic grades and as long as their parents do not complain that they are getting too much football, it's nobody's business where we play, when we play or how often we play.

"Some of those critics can't understand why we get so much good freshman material. They seem to think that we have some way of inducing a great high school player to come to Notre Dame. As I said before, we haven't any high school sensations here. Did you ever hear of Gipp, Crowley, Miller, Stuhldreher or Layden as sensational high school players? Of course, you didn't and neither did I."

SCHLAIFER FOULS MALONE TWICE, TIES UP PURSE

JOCK HAD KNOCKED HIM SILLY WITH A PUNCH TO THE JAW

BOXING COMMISSION SEIZES THE PURSE, PENDING INVESTIGATION

(By United Press)

St. Paul, Nov. 11.—After being knocked silly by a right-hand punch to the jaw, Morrie Schlaifer, the Omaha bad man, fouled Jock Malone twice last night, losing the fight and tieing up the purse. The boxing commission seized the purse pending investigation.

It was in the third round when Malone socked Schlaifer on the button. Schlaifer went down but was too dizzy to take advantage of the count. He hopped up and started an apparently aimless milling, a left-hand blow catching Malone in the groin and inflicting some pain. Malone was offered the fight by the referee but brushed him aside, intent on finishing Schlaifer. Then Schlaifer let loose another wild one, bringing his full power to bear in a blow to the groin. Malone's hand was raised in victory, then he collapsed on the canvas, where doctors treated him.

STAGG'S STRATEGY MAKES TITLE RACE A FREE-FOR-ALL

Chicago, Nov. 11.—The strategy and cunning of Amos Alonzo Stagg, for 33 years football coach at the University of Chicago, has again thrown the big ten title race into a free-for-all.

Bob Zuppke's Illinois eleven, last week considered "in" as champions of the middle west conference, suffered a humiliating tie at the hands of Stagg's Maroons and now it's only a matter of endurance to decide the title.

Illinois has yet to meet Minnesota and Ohio State. Neither team is likely to arise from mediocrity as did Chicago, and Zuppke's team probably will finish the season undefeated. The Illini tribe then will claim the title by virtue of the fact it was tied only once while Chicago suffered two even breaks. They will also point to the fact by beating Ohio—a team which held Chicago to a tie—they have undisputed right to the championship. Chicago meets Northwestern this week and then Wisconsin. If Stagg's charges retain the strength they showed against Illinois, they should come through without a scratch, and also will claim the title. To counter the Illini claim that they were tied twice, Chicago will point to the fact that they played one more game than Illinois.

But when two great teams play to a tie, no one can determine which is champion. It will simply be an undecided race like last year when Illinois and Michigan completed their schedules without a defeat.

Stagg tied Illinois Saturday by sheer strategy. Everybody thought he'd be on the defensive—trying desperately to stop the mighty Red Grange. Instead, he grabbed the offensive from the start and scored two touchdowns before Grange was given the ball. Nothing but a fighting heart—and a brilliant run by Grange—allowed Illinois to even the count.
